

ECARS: INTENTIONAL INTERFERENCE

Basic principles*

1. The language used by the interfering station, language often called “obscene” or “dirty” is irrelevant to the FCC. Obscenity is almost impossible to define and /or prove. It does not matter what you or I think about it!
2. What is important is that frequency was already in use, that the interference prohibited communication, that the interfering station failed to identify . These are things that carry weight with the FCC.

Procedures

- 1. Do not talk to the person.
- 2. Do not make on-air remarks about him/her.
- 3. Ignore it no matter how bad.
- 4. Resume net control

Remember that to pay attention to the offender,gives him/herCONTROL , which is your job!

*Info. Source: Dan Henderson, N1ND, ARRL, Regulatory Information Mgr.(12/13/11)